Mr. Ewell E. Fuller

DEC 30, 1950 - JAN 22, 2015

Jackie E.E. Fuller
D.O.B. 12/30/1950 D.O.D 01/22/2015

Born in Houston Texas, raised in West U. and Bellaire, currently living in Clear Lake Shores, Tx. An opera singing truck driver, as he billed himself, Jackie was so much more than that. A sailor, self-taught engineer, truck driver, motorcross racer, inventor, loyal friend, and tinkerer, Jackie knew few strangers. Always willing to lend a hand and help out anyone who needed it, he will be missed by many. His sharp mind and memory allowed him to mingle with NASA scientists, engineers, or housewives. He was an accomplished dancer and was in much demand on any dance floor. Always impeccably dressed when possible, he enjoyed nights at the opera or a country-western dance hall. His beautiful Tenor voice would sing out when given the chance.

He ran for City Council of Clear Lake Shores when he thought the corruption was out of hand and took a lot of flack from those who opposed a change of politics. He was successful in making Clear Lake Shores a better community. His latest project was an entirely new transportation system for people and goods that would work during hurricanes, flooding, or for shipping large containers.

He will be missed by many, including his daughter Chloe Bush and husband William Bush, of College Station, loyal sister, Cheryle Fuller of New Braunfels; sisters Sharon Mazariegos of Pearland and her children; Cyndy Woodham, of Corinth and her children, Lamar Woodham,; Dixie Woodham Dean and son Breaker; Travis Woodham and Tomoko of Japan.

The Mazariegos Family (sister Sharon and husband Jorge, nephews Jorge 2nd and Michael) Jack had many talents and interests over the course of his life. He loved the outdoors, riding a bike standing on the seat, riding a motorcycle or sailing a boat. He was his own man, rarely doing anything he didn't want to. He inherited his love of singing from his talented mother Marjorie and his love of and grasp of History from his father B.P. Fuller. Jackie would have been a wonderful history teacher. He was fortunate to have made two trips to Europe and some of the places his father had fought in during WWII. His nephews noticed how he loved to take things apart to see how they worked and see if he could make it better. He will be missed.

Buster Stokely lit a candle in honor of Ewell.

My Uncle Jack was a very special man, when I was young kid he was always the cool uncle to go to and have fun with when we would travel from Denton to Houston and visit family on the holidays. He always had something cool and interesting things to talk about, whether it was stories to tell about traveling to some part of the earth across the globe we had never seen or about some personal endeavor like building an addition to one of his boat or vehicles. He was always doing or planning something creative. Jack was the type of guy that always thought outside of the box and for that a lot of the time his intentions and sentiments were mis-interpreted by people. With that said he to me he was always a caring, loving and supportive uncle. I remember the many history lessons he had given me, it was always interesting to hear these because he explained them from a different perspective than most. Very obscure compared to what I was taught in school through textbooks and whatnot. This was another very great character trait he had. He was always quick to speak his mind and tell the truth about things regardless of the circumstances and what people thought of him. This mindset and outlook was probably a large benefactor as to why he a seat on the City Council in the town of which he resided. He pushed for change and made change that he did. I will always have love for him and miss him. Rest in Peace Uncle Jack. Love, Your nephew Buster Woodham
