Bobbie, I will miss you so much and ALWAYS treasure our friendship as one that was very special. You had me @ our 1st introduction from your neighbor & our mutual friend, Connie. I depended on you for sound advice on many things when the kids were growing up and later on life decisions ... will miss our talks and visits. Something is now missing in my life ... it's you Bobbie. Rest in Peace. Your friend. Dixie

Bobbie was the kind of friend that, even though we did not stay in close contact, I knew I could call her any time I needed her and she would be there, and vice versa. We were more than friends, we were family. We raised our children together. Every morning after the kids left for school we devoted an hour or so to solving the worlds problems. It wasn't an easy job, but we were good. We used to say we were going to get our own talk show. We had plenty to say, so we wouldn't need guest. We could carry on two conversations at the same time. I'm telling you, we were talented. I'm sure gonna miss her. I'm betting God had a very important job in mind when he called her home. So long my friend, till we meet again.
