nothing i can say can explain how much love i had for you since the moment you stepped into my life and opened your arms to receive me as a daughter you never had i always appreciated you for the man you were with me and stepped up to treating me like the little princess you showed me how a real man treats a woman, how to work hard, and never give up. the best memory we have together is having a relationship that a daughter can ask for being there present for me. i never understood why a disease had to effect you nine years and have to effect your life in a where it changed our life no one understands why it had to be you but you didn't let it stop you from being a human being you still pushed everyday and never gave up on life i'm sorry that ALS had to beat you in this fight but we all know you won this battle for the nine years you kept pushing for a cure. i love you forever and will always remember your legacy. i love you desi briones see you soon ☐☐
